

RAF POURS 400 TONS OF BOMBS ON NAZI CITY IN SECOND RAID

Britain Calls Smash at Plane Works in Rostock Greatest Air Attack Since Beginning of War.

By The Associated Press
Rostock was battered fiercely overnight in the RAF's second successful 1,000-mile round trip against the big German Baltic coast port and shipping center where the British declared today that more than 400 tons of explosives were dropped in the two attacks.
The smashes at Rostock were said to have surpassed anything a German air force had dealt out to Britain.

The air ministry in London said the British fliers, striking in fair weather with a good view of their targets, blasted the Heinkel plane works with heavy bombs and left huge fires flaring from Rostock's Neptune shipyards.

British planes crossed and recrossed Dover strait in a haze today and heavy explosions and gunfire sounded from France—at times apparently from the areas of Calais, Boulogne and inland.

Benefitted by excellent weather, the British fliers were said to have hit with particularly good effect at the Heinkel plant.

The attack sustained a new round-the-clock cycle of British raids on Germany in which the RAF struck with unprecedented power twice within 24 hours—first with a pre-dawn assault on the important Nazi port where, in the hour Thursday night, the "greatest weight of bombs" in RAF history was loosed and later when the largest British fighter force ever sent against a single objective escorted bombers attacking the occupied Dutch port of Flushing in daylight.

Nazis Admit Raid

The German radio acknowledged the new raid on Rostock.
That the British struck on successive nights against the comparatively small city of Rostock was regarded in some quarters as a sign that the Germans were using it as a great base for rush-

Urge for Opening Second War Front

Gains with Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst
The closer we draw to the great Russo-German clash, which may well be the decisive battle of the war, the greater is the urge among allied peoples for the opening up of a second front in western Europe to support the Soviet effort.

The most striking advocacy of this adventurous strategy comes from Britain's lease-lend coordinator in Washington, the powerful and outspoken Lord Beaverbrook.
The "Beaver," as he is called in London, urges his own country to strike out violently "even recklessly" to aid the Russians.

Coming from one so close to Prime Minister Churchill, this stance has aroused enthusiastic hopes among supporters of a second front.

"This is a chance," said the "Beaver," "to bring the war to an end here and now. But if the Russians are defeated and driven out of the war, never will such a chance come to us again."

In holding that it is possible to end the conflict now, Lord Beaverbrook is following someone who has said that Hitler can be smashed this year if the Soviet gets help.

That this is the crucial moment to give the Reds every ounce of help possible is the consensus of allied leadership. Whether this is the time to try invasion of western Europe is something which only the supreme command can decide.

Six months ago, it probably would have been suicidal, partly because of lack of ships and other equipment and partly because of Hitler's great strength and the mobility of his striking power.
Since then, however, the arch-aggressor has taken a fierce beating at the hands of the Reds, and his armies in western Europe have been weakened. Thus it may be said, allied council will decide that the time has come for an all-out push.

COUNCILMAN URGES PARK TRAILER CAMP

To Propose That City Open Part of Lincoln Park.

A proposal to create a trailer camp for Scioto Ordnance Plant workers in at least one of Marion's city parks will be presented to city council Monday night by Councilman Pearl H. Sells of 148 South Vine street.

Councilman Sells said yesterday afternoon that he had talked to a number of Marion men in the last few days and all of them favored his idea.

His proposal, in discussing the matter with businessmen, bankers, farmers and other individuals, the councilman said he had talked with one Marion trailer camp operator and was told the operator charges from $9 to $14 a month for trailer space.

Councilman Sells' proposal Monday night will deal solely with Lincoln park in north Marion. However, he said he could see no reason why the other parks could not be used if the need arises.

His proposal Monday night will be to provide parking space at Lincoln park for 100 trailers. "The revenue to the city, at least $900 a month, could be placed in the general and park funds of the city and council would be meeting a need in furthering defense work," he said.

At Lincoln park, where sewers already are laid, he said the only expense to the city would be electric wiring and showers.

Housing Problem Discussed in Paper

News about the approaching housing problems of workers and more developments in preparation for a recreational plant for the incoming employees are among the subjects of stories in the third issue of the Scioto News, plant newspaper distributed to workers yesterday.

Two items relate to housing. One reports that Capt. Robert Lockridge, area engineer, has recommended to the district engineer for the war department in Cincinnati that the Scioto News be published in Marion.

HALF-MILLION-DOLLAR HOUSING PROJECT SET

CHINESE LINE IN BURMA HIT BY JAP TANKS

Gen. Stilwell's Forces Face Danger from Rapid Ad- vance of Enemy.

By The Associated Press
Tank-led Japanese troops were reported threatening to roll back the Chinese line in the battle of Burma today as furious, confused fighting raged within 100 miles of the vital allied base at Mandalay.

It is fairly clear that the Japanese drive has made progress, a communique said tersely. Meanwhile, heavy Japanese sent waves of planes to blast Chinese air bases nearest to the island empire.

A Tokyo broadcast said Japanese naval and army bombers, successively attacking the bases for the past three days, destroyed planes and hangars in western Chekiang province, southern Chekiang and northern Kiangsi.

After U. S. Bombers
The bases have been under repeated attack since Imperial Tokyo headquarters said it believed that the U. S. bombers which raided Japan for the first time a week ago today flew on to bases in China.

In Burma, the situation appeared extremely grave for the allies. "Capture of Mandalay would virtually cut off the last allied-held link in the Burma road, imperiling the 100-mile stretch from Mandalay to Lashio, and would secure the Japanese flank for a possible land drive into India."

Chinese dispatches said the invaders were paying a bloody toll in their sweep to the north, asserting that 6,000 Japanese had been killed against 1,000 Chinese casualties in a single week's fighting.

Latest front-line reports indicated that the out-numbered Chinese still were fighting stubbornly around Taunggyi, Hopong and Schweingyang in an attempt to halt the nearest Japanese penetration to Mandalay.

A further Japanese advance in this sector would not only directly threaten Chinese communications on the Sittoung river front, to the west, but also would place the invaders astride roads running into Mandalay and Lashio.

THIRD REGISTRATION FOR DRAFT STARTS

45-65 Group To Be Listed To- day, Sunday, Monday.

Registration of approximately 4,000 men between the ages of 45 and 65 was begun today noon at Marion city and county draft board offices as the three-day period set for the task throughout the nation started.

The registration, the fourth under the selective service act, is calculated to classify men in accordance with their ability to aid in the war effort on the home production front. It is expected nearly 700,000 men will register in Ohio and about 13,000,000 throughout the nation.

In Marion, registration will be conducted at the offices of local Boards 1, 2 and 3.

Other places of registration throughout the county are in Caledonia at the mayor's office and in the council rooms in La Rue at the town hall; in Morral at the town hall; in Prospect at the mayor's office and in Waldo at the township house.

Men may register until 6 o'clock this evening and again tomorrow from noon until 6 p. m. on Monday; registration places will be open from 7 a. m. till 9 p. m.

It was announced today that Jack G. Lloyd will act as registrar for employees of Holabird & Root at the firm's office at 127 North Prospect street. Registration of Hunkin-Conkey workers will be conducted at the offices at the corner of George and Main streets.

Sugar Ration Registration Arrangements Completed

Officials Announce Plans After Attending State Instruction Meeting in Columbus.

Details of the sugar rationing registration of industries, institutions, wholesalers and retailers, next Tuesday and Wednesday were virtually completed today for Marion city and county.

County Rationing Coordinator John P. Probst, City School Supt. E. E. Holt and County School Supt. D. T. Mills attended a conference of county coordinators and school administrators from 61 of the 88 counties of Ohio all day yesterday in Columbus.

Coordinator Probst urged today that home users not confuse next week's registration with theirs, which will start May 5. Details of the home consumers' registration will be developed next week and will cover a multitude of attendant questions.

"This registration next week covers four groups only," Mr. Probst said. "When it's over we will go into the home consumer registration. The important thing is not to get the two confused. Home consumers don't need to bother about next week's registration. Their 'party' will come later."

Forms Available

Registration forms for wholesalers, retailers, industries and institutions are available at the Chamber of Commerce office on North State street or from the county rationing boards, and by Tuesday morning will be available at all high schools in the county.

Retailers and wholesalers must fill out Form A. Industrial and institutional users will fill out both Form 10 and Form 14, the application for sugar purchase certificates.

Coordinator Probst stressed today that the forms must be filled out and ready for signature before the registrants go to the schools Tuesday and Wednesday. At the schools the forms will be signed in the presence of the registrars, who will be school teachers.

Users in Marion city and Marion township will register at Harding High school from 3 to 5:30 p. m. and 7 to 9:30 p. m. either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Superintendent Mills said the hours for making formal application in the county schools will be set at a meeting of county school heads Monday night in his office.

"The registration blanks must be handled through the school channels, not the coordinator's office," Mr. Probst said. "If a registrant does not have the required figures he should contact the person who filled out his income tax and get them. The registrants will have no way of knowing whether the figures on the forms are correct. Their duty will be to see that the forms are filled out properly and to witness signatures."

Important Figures

The most important figures on Form 5 for wholesalers and retailers are: "The gross sales of all meats, groceries, fruits, vegetables, etc., for the week ending April 25, 1942."

For industrial and institutional users, the principal figure is: The quantity of sugar delivered and accepted by the registrants during 1941.

The institutional and industrial group covers everything from small boarding houses to large restaurants and hotels, home candy manufacturers, canning factories and bottling plants.

The wholesale and retail group is made up of everything from small neighborhood stores to super markets and a wholesale houses.

The registration in the county will be largely in the retail, industrial and institutional classes. Mr. Mills said, mentioning earlier at Green Camp and Morral, the Marion County Children's home and the county infirmary, school cafeterias and several apartments in southern Marion county.

For the most part the remainder of registrants will be from restaurants, groceries and one or two bakeries in the county, he said. He said he knew of no one in the wholesale group in the county.

SCOFIELD LAND SELECTED FOR 125 NEW HOMES

Woodfield, O., Builder Takes Option on 36 Acres Near Duluth Ave.

Plans for the undertaking of a half-million dollar building project in Marion to be known as the Scofield Heights Sixth addition were announced today by C. Schell, Inc., Marion real estate brokerage firm acting as agent for Mrs. Oda W. Scofield, owner of the site of the addition.

Mr. Schell said an option has been taken on about 36 acres of the Scofield property by J. J. Hurlbarger of Woodfield, O., an experienced builder. He said the option was taken yesterday and that arrangements for the formation of a corporation for the project are already under way.

The entire project will be under the supervision of the Federal Housing Administration. Mr. Schell said, and, under present plans, would include about 125 houses. The property included under the option lies south of Duluth avenue, extended west, and west of Windsor, between Duluth and Thew avenues.

PLAN TO NAME POSTMASTER

Applications for Marion Office To Be Received Up To May 12.

A Marion postmaster will be selected within a few months by the U. S. civil service commission. This was announced officially by the commission in notices it has sent here announcing that applications for the office must be on file in Washington not later than May 12.

This definitely disposes of the uncertainty about the status of Postmaster L. L. Lamborn, who for a time seemed to have a chance of holding the office without any further appointment due to the fact his appointment in 1938 came just three days before a new civil service law was passed taking the office of postmaster out of politics.

However, among Marion political observers Mr. Lamborn is believed to head the list of applicants for the office and is reported definitely a candidate for reappointment.

Whenever get the appointment this time will hold the job under a civil service law that is designed to give appointees 15 or more years of service. In the past, appointees have been made every four years and the jobs have been considered political patronage.

The new law also changes the procedure followed in selecting a postmaster. This time, "competitor will not be required to report for written examination at any place, but will be rated upon their education, business or professional experience, qualifications and suitability," the commission's announcement states. Application and instruction forms containing detailed information regarding requirements may be obtained from the secretary of the board of civil service examiners in Marion or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission in Washington, D. C.

NEW DRAFT CLASS 3-B ESTABLISHED

For Men with Dependents and Essential To War Work.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, April 25—The selective service system has set up a new draft classification for the last group which might be sought for military service—men who have dependents and are engaged in work essential to war production or to the war effort.

Regulations establishing the new classification—3-B—also set forth that men who have acquired dependents since the nation went to war would not be deferred because of them, was announced by Col. Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois selective service director last night.

Armstrong made the announcement on receipt of the new orders from national selective service headquarters in Washington. He said the new classification, which is referred to as 3-B, was undoubtedly set up because national headquarters feels the nation may suffer or later have to look to the present and future 3-A ranks for more men.

He said no 3-A man would be taken until after the supply of 3-B men is exhausted.

Defense Homes Activity in Central Ohio Boosts FHA Loan Applications

The Federal Housing Administration in central Ohio showed an increase of about 133 per cent in the volume of applications for home mortgage insurance in the first three months of this year over the same period of last year, it was reported today by A. L. Guckert, director for central district of Ohio.

Defense home activity under FHA's Title VI accounted for the increase, Mr. Guckert pointed out. All of this type of work is new construction.

One of the highlights of the quarterly report is the increase in the volume of defense home construction as reflected in applications submitted to FHA under the regular Title II provisions and the comparatively new Title VI regulations. New home building under this category showed an increase in the first three months of this year of about 173 per cent over the first quarter of 1941, Mr. Guckert's report shows.

Applications for FHA mortgage insurance on new construction showed a progressive increase in each month this year under both Title II and VI over those submitted for existing construction, although priorities and other factors may be responsible in recent weeks for a substantial increase in the number of applications for mortgage protection on existing homes.

Mr. Guckert's report shows that in the first three months of this year, a total of 1911 applications involving $8,430,900 were received through the Columbus office under both Title II and VI. This compares with 790 applications amounting to $3,927,209 in the first quarter of 1941.

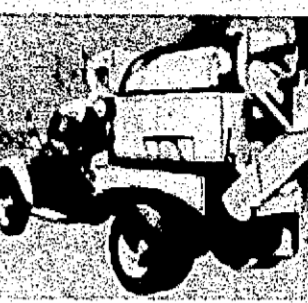

"While this report is encouraging, there is much to be done yet by private building to meet the steadily increasing demand for homes for defense workers in the Columbus area as well as other sections of the state," Mr. Guckert said. "Recent surveys have shown that there is a possibility of a shortage in living units in this area which, if not met, might interfere with the war program."

"Virtually all private builders in this area are aware of the possibilities to be found in supplying the demand for small, medium-priced and sound homes for defense workers. The anticipated upswing in rents hereabouts, due to a number of factors, has also operated to the benefit of the construction industry. Including many families to start on a home-owning program. The vacancy ratio in living units in the Columbus area about six weeks ago was considerably less than 1 per cent and this has moved on the downward side recently, thus giving one additional indication that much more home building is needed in this entire area."

St. Louis Goes Wild as U. S. Navy Ace Arrives for Visit

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, April 25.—They're turning over St. Louis to Lieutenant Commander Edward H. O'Hare today in the wildest welcoming celebration for a returning hero since Charles A. Lindbergh came back from his trans-Atlantic flight, but the young navy flyer is loath to accept the adulation.

Mrs. Selma O'Hare, mother of the big fellow who downed five Japanese bombers and damaged a sixth in a battle over the Pacific, says he's scared stiff.

"Eddie appreciates it, but doesn't understand why he should get all this acclaim," Mrs. O'Hare explained. "And he's really shy and quiet."

"Besides he says other flyers deserve just as much credit as he does. All are fighting for our country."

O'Hare, who grew up in St. Louis, will ride in a parade with his mother and his wife, the former Rita Wooster of Keokuk, Ia. His sisters, Mrs. Paul V. Palmer and Mrs. Phil E. Towner, both of Phoenix, Ariz., also will participate in the ceremonies.

His car will be flanked by an honor guard of two sailors, two marines and two coast guardsmen. The parade winds up in front of Soldiers Memorial where Mayor William Dee Becker will give the flyer a big brass key to the city. A gold watch inscribed "From the proud and grateful city of St. Louis" also will be presented.

registrants who are available for military service under present standards were exhausted.

Under the new selective service order a registrant with qualified dependents, who also is employed in war production work or a supporting activity, such as farming, transportation or food inspection, will be placed in 3-B. If, however, a man with such dependents is engaged in a non-essential activity, he will be put in 3-A.

The first men to be classified 3-B will be men between the ages of 35 and 44 years, inclusive, who registered Feb. 16. General reconsideration of present 3-A classifications to determine 3-B eligibility will not be made until classification of the Feb. 16 group has been completed.

The regulations announced the dependency rating in the new class, or in 3-A would not apply in cases of recent marriage; and "in cases where the dependency status was acquired on or after Dec. 8, 1941, or acquired when induction was imminent or for the primary purpose of providing for dependency deferment, pregnancy, birth, or acquiring a child."

Likewise, class 3-A or 3-B will not be given men whose dependents, such as working wives who had been providing their own support, adequately voluntarily quit working for the primary purpose of affording a basis for dependency deferment.

Police School Week Closes

Final Sessions of Marion Schedule Set for Next Monday Through Friday.

The police traffic training school, which has been held in both afternoon and night sessions Monday through Friday of this week, is now at the half-way mark. Five similar afternoon and night meetings next week will close the school.

L. H. W. Hoyt of Purdue university was in charge of the first three days' instruction, which dealt with a preview of traffic problems, accident investigation, hit and run investigation and physical laws.

The indoor periods are held in Eagles club rooms in city hall. An outdoor session was held Wednesday on Durfee drive, where demonstrations of how to determine speed of cars by the length of tire skid marks they make were given.

Bureau Manager Speaks

William G. Davis, assistant manager of the Automobile Protective and Information bureau, co-sponsor of the school with Purdue university, spoke Thursday and Friday on liabilities of a police officer, a police officer on the witness stand and law and evidence.

Mr. Davis said monthly reports are being made here to determine just what is causing accidents in the city. He said pedestrians and bicyclists of either below 16 or above 60 years of age are involved in more accidents in Marion than they are in most cities of the same size. He pointed out that these are the groups which must be contacted in order to decrease traffic mishaps in the city.

L. Hoyt said city police have spent 1,508 hours in the past few months at such schools as the one held here. He pointed out that police are handicapped by lack of proper equipment.

Next week's schedule of instruction is as follows: Monday, interpretation of state traffic code by a state highway patrol official; Tuesday, talk on reports and record by J. P. Rockenfield, special agent for the Automobile Protective and Information bureau; Wednesday, speech by Prof. J. L. Lingo of Purdue university on war traffic; Thursday, talk on traffic war emergencies by Prof. Lingo.

Friday's session, at which Lt. Hoyt will discuss public relations, will close the school which, in addition to all policemen and officers, has been attended by City Engineer T. S. Cathers, who will be in charge of traffic accident reports in the future.

Several police officers from Delaware, Bucyrus and Galton have also been present at the meetings.

MARION CLUBWOMEN AWARDED HONORS

Achievements Win Recognition at State Convention.

Marion clubwomen won honors for their work along club lines during the last club year at the annual convention of the Ohio Federation of Clubwomen which closed yesterday at Columbus.

The Marion County Federation was awarded first place in Class B for the sale of articles made by the blind of the state. The more than 30 clubs, with sales totaling nearly $1,000, received an award of $72.91 from the state federation. Competition in Class B was among clubs in cities ranging in population comparable to Marion.

Mrs. J. C. Ackerman is federation chairman of the sale of articles made by the blind. The sale this year is believed to have netted the largest sum in the history of the federation and this year's award was the highest ever received by the clubs.

Members of the Current Topic club won first honors in Central district and second in the state scrapbook contest. The Child Welfare league of St. Clairsville received first honors. Miss Maye Evangeline Lawrence served as scrapbook chairman for her club.

This is the second consecutive year the club has been in the top rank of clubs competing for scrapbook honors. Last year the club tied with a Dayton club for first place.

The federation also shared first honors with the Toledo federation in complying with the requirements specified in the rules of the penny art fund. Each received an oil painting done by an Ohio artist. The art fund is used by the state group in furthering the work of Ohio painters.

Marion clubwomen, headed by Mrs. A. W. Beck, federation president, attended one or more sessions of the convention. Members of the Federation Chorus, directed by Mrs. Eugene H. Moore, sang on Thursday's program and joined other federation choruses from the state for a number on the program.

ONTARIO GETS POST

CATTLE PRICES HIT NEW SEASONAL HIGHS

Beef Follows Pace Set by Hog Quotations.

CHICAGO, April 25 — (Wire World) — Prices of choice cattle, following the pace set by hogs, advanced to new seasonal highs on the livestock market this week, supported by strong wholesale beef quotations and a decline in tonnage of choice arrivals.

At their top of $17.25 a hundred pounds, cattle were selling higher than at any time in the last four years. April quotations in the past have risen above current levels on only a few occasions.

There has been little discussion of ceilings on wholesale beef quotations, similar to those placed on pork, but livestock circles recalled that on Feb. 25 Secretary of Agriculture Wickard included along with hogs in a statement that "prices of these farm products are high enough."

Most livestock circles doubt to have the government will take any specific action against cattle until the hog situation is clarified.

Freezing of wholesale pork quotations has not restrained advances in hogs, largely because of heavy government pork and lard purchases at prices above the wholesale ceilings.

Another factor which might be leading some support to the cattle upturn, some traders said, was the government report that the number of cattle on feed for market in the 11 corn belt states on April 1 was 2 per cent smaller than a year ago.

This was the first year, the department added, that the number of cattle on feed on that date was below the number of the preceding year. Nevertheless, the department said slaughter supplies of fed cattle during the late spring and summer again may be quite large.

The department also recalled that marketing of slaughter cattle in the first three months of 1932 totaled about 20 per cent more than a year earlier. Although it is unlikely that this rate of increase will be maintained throughout the year, the department said it now appears that total cattle slaughter in 1932 will be substantially larger than last year.

Secret Orders

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

At The Bridge

"STEVE, darling, I'm going to join the Red Cross," Vicky announced at the breakfast table the next morning. "Do you suppose I'll get one of those uniform like you wear?"

Stephanie smiled at her cousin. "You can have your uniform tailored at Chas. Montant if you want to pay the price."

"That's a marvelous idea. I think I will. And it's going to be such fun really doing something."

But by the end of the week, Vicky had decided it wasn't fun at all to spend tedious hours making sandwiches, packing them.

"Mountains of them I've made," she groaned. "I certainly didn't expect to spend my time slicing cheese and bologna. If I never see another sandwich, I'll be perfectly happy."

Stephanie shook her head. "Somebody has to do it. Look, we haven't enough for the 10 o'clock canteen. And he attacked another stack of bread vigorously."

The door behind her opened and Vicky, drooping in a chair, suddenly came to life.

"Why, Henri, darling. What ever are you doing here?"

Stephanie glanced up, noticed for the dozenth time how very good-looking Henri was.

"I am looking for two charming young ladies who, I hope, will have dinner with me," he said looking from one to the other.

"What a break!" Vicky jumped up, straightened her very smartly tailored coat. "Of course we'll go."

But Stephanie shook her head. "Can't, Henri. Too much to do here."

"Oh come now," he urged. "Surely you can't be expected to work all the time. Don't be a drudge, Grace on."

But Stephanie insisted and a moment later they were off, Vicky clinging to Henri's arm, sparkling with more enthusiasm than she had shown all week.

She forgot about them for the next few busy hours. And at ten when it was time to take out the canteen, she drove the station wagon herself up a back street to Van Ness, north to the bridge approach.

She stopped the car at the point beyond which civilians were forbidden to go, blinked her lights by way of signal to the sentry. While she waited, she relaxed, resting her head wearily against the steering wheel. She wished the sentry would hurry.

In a few moments she blinked the car lights again. Still no response. Finally, she honked the horn, two short, sharp blasts. Again—no answer.

Instantly, apprehension took hold of her. Something was wrong. There was a sentry on duty here all hours of the day and night. Besides, he would be expecting her.

She stepped quickly out of the car and, quite well aware that she was on forbidden ground, ran up the embankment to the wide cement bulwark that held back the black, sucking waters of the bay. She could hear the splash, splash of the water but the thick curtain of fog shut off vision of everything save the narrow walk under her feet. She shuddered, realizing that it would take only one misstep to plunge her into icy water. Then suddenly a gust of wind from the ocean pushed back part of the fog for an instant. Before the thick cloud closed in again, Stephanie saw—or thought she saw—a small boat. But it disappeared again before she could be sure.

"Halloa there! It's the canteen!" she called, moving cautiously along the cement wall.

Fear dogged her every step and her heart hammered thunderously. When, a moment later, she bumped squarely into a khaki-clad figure, she cried out.

"What are you doing here?" a deep voice demanded sharply.

"I'm the Red Cross driver. Brought the canteen. But there wasn't any sentry. He didn't—"

The soldier grasped her arm, guided her back along the wall. "No sentry! That's impossible."

But it wasn't impossible. When he turned the beam of his powerful flashlight down onto the black water below them, they saw why. In the shallow water, half-submerged, lay the body of a man—face down, moving only with the steady pulse of the rippling.

They sounded the alarm, then, and the thick fog, gave up dozens of soldiers and finally, the sinister discovery that the soldier who had only a few minutes before taken up his post, had drowned in less than three feet of water!

But how could he! Stephanie, horrified, realized she would never forget the sight of that limp, dripping form, lifted out of the sticky black mud.

"Keep your mouth shut about this," a soldier advised her as he helped her back to the station wagon. "Probably an accident. But if it wasn't—"

"But how—if he'd fallen off the wall, wouldn't he have called for help?"

"Probably. But you just forget about the whole thing."

Slip Of The Tongue

Even by the time she got home, Stephanie was still trembling, unnerved by the shock. When, stepping into the wide hall, she heard voices in the living room, she was tempted to fly to her own room. But Vicky had heard her come in. "Hi, Steve darling come in."

And as Stephanie pulled off her gloves, walked toward the cheery fire burning on the hearth where Henri and Vicky sat enjoying the warmth and a tall drink, she suddenly hated them both. For proceeding with "pleasure as usual" when there was great work to be done, when the life of their nation was at stake, when young soldier boys lost their lives in mysterious, awful tragedy.

"Goodness, darling, you look exhausted," Vicky said carelessly. Fatigue, and fright and anger cut the cheek rems on Stephanie's temper. "I am exhausted," she snapped. "Maybe if you'd just seen what I saw, you too would not be so damnably indifferent."

And before she realized what she was doing, she was pouring out details of the awful secret the bay had offered up.

"At the approach to the Golden Gate bridge, you say?" Henri questioned her sharply.

And too late, Stephanie remembered the soldier's gruff warning to "keep her mouth shut about this." Too late, she recognized more than average interest in Henri's attitude.

"It was ghastly," she went on, more calmly trying hard to disguise her discovery with a disarming smile. "But an accident no doubt. Sorry if I snapped at you. I'm just upset, I guess."

"But of course, darling," Vicky sympathized. "Who wouldn't be? Let's talk of something pleasant. Like the party at Millers' tonight."

And for the next half hour, Vicky painted brilliant word pictures of the charming Millers, their distinguished guests, their deep devotion to Henri and to their charming neighbor.

"It's a pity you didn't come with us," Vicky said finally. A pity indeed, Stephanie agreed silently, studying the profile

Comedy with Background of Navy Life at Palace

Lamour, William Holden and Eddie Bracken in Lead Roles; "The Lady Has Plans" Coming.

The comedy, "The Fleet's In," is the U. S. navy at its best. It stars Dorothy Lamour, William Holden and Eddie Bracken in the Palace Sunday matinee.

Lamour is cast well as a girl who is a "narc" to get. When Holden, a go-go on leave from San Francisco, obtains through a reputation of being a "narc" a shipmate Eddie Bracken, who is a different type of "narc," known as a "narc" in the navy.

Holden has a hard time getting to his base with "The Countess," and many are the threats against him by shipmates who have bet on his coming through.

Featured Songs
Songs played by Mr. Dorsey, aided by peppy Betty Hutton, include "Arthur Murray Taught Me Dancing in a Hurry," "Tangerine" and "The Fleet's In."

Also on the bill are "Village Smithy," a Walt Disney cartoon, and the latest "March of Time," which deals with "The Argentine Question."

Loretta Young is starred in the Wednesday movie, "The Men in Her Life." The "men" are Conrad Veidt, Dean Jagger, John Shepperd

"King's Row" On Ohio Bill

Ann Sheridan in One of Leading Roles of Popular Drama.

"King's Row," still a popular novel after months as a best seller, is on the Ohio theater screen as a starring vehicle for Ann Sheridan, Robert Cummings, Ronald Reagan and Betty Field.

The motion picture version will play through Thursday and will be followed by one of the season's new comedies, "Rings on Her Fingers," co-starring Henry Fonda and Gene Tierney.

The turn of the century is the time setting for "King's Row." It is the story of young people, hemmed in by the inhibitions and taboos of a small midwestern town in the early years of this century. Struggling to find happiness against the opposition of the seething undercurrent of gossip and back-biting, the strong and brave emerge victorious, the weak are sublimed.

Two young men, and the two romances in which each becomes involved provide the central dramatic situations. The love affair of Robert Cummings, as Paris Mitchell, the gently-reared grandson of a foreign noblewoman, and his childhood sweetheart, Cassandra, played by Betty Field, meets a tragic end. He eventually finds some consolation and a promise of future happiness with Elise, played by Kirsten Verne.

The other young man, Drake Hughes, who is portrayed by Ronald Reagan, is embittered by the parental opposition which Louis Gordon, Nancy Coleman family put in the way of their marriage but finds that true love is a sturdy Monarch. Any one who is right and from the wrong side of the tracks.

Laura Cregar, considered one of Hollywood's most promising character actors, plays the leading supporting role in the Henry Fonda comedy.

The picture offers a V as the new her first appearance in a youthful modern dress role. Miss Tierney, a shipmate in the navy, and Spring Byington, who plays a blonde out of the navy, Fonda is her victim.

All these and others seeking high places, recognition or preferment may push toward advancement, promotion and tokens of esteem with assurance and confidence. Writings and intellectual pursuits thrive.

Those looking for intellectual or professional expression may also work for approbation, although they may be peculiar, irregular or eccentric plants to the ideas which may require supervision.

A child born on this day should have great love of beauty and artistic expression, with high creative talent.

For Monday, April 27

MONDAY'S astrological forecast may be for a difficult day, with much intelligence, extravagance and excess, in outlay of funds, emotions and energy, which should be rigidly nipped in the bud lest loss, sorrow and regret ensue.

Those whose birthday it is may be disposed to a course of extravagance, indulgence and excess, both in a physical, spiritual and emotional squandering of substance, which may invite disapproval, want of support and approval from public as well as private associates. Financial and emotional control should be exercised at the inception.

A child born on this day should be given very early analysis and supervision in order to understand and direct its tendency to irresponsible and excessive indulgence of its forces.

The surprise hit of 1942 — "THE VANISHING VIRGINIAN"

MEL HARDER HELPS CLEVELAND FORGET FELLER'S ABSENCE

Oldtimer Pitches 2 to 0 Shutout Against Browns; Tribe Now in 2nd Spot Behind Yanks.

When Bob Feller missed in the navy last winter everybody agreed, more or less, that the Cleveland Indians had lost their whole ball club.

This was a fine tribute to the great fast ball pitcher, and, at the time, it was a sincere and considered appraisal of the Cleveland team. But who do you suppose is putting at the heels of the New York Yankees in the American league today?—The Indians, just a game behind the world champions.

They are riding the crest of the biggest winning streak in the major leagues today, six games, and the ground staff which was supposed to have vanished with Feller has turned in the most consistent well-pitched games in the big show.

In 10 games, Indian pitchers have allowed an average of less than seven hits a game.

Mel Goes To Town

Yesterday old Mel Harder, who apparently was washed up a year ago and was handed his outright release only to get back into harness this spring at the request of young Lou Boudreau, pitched a four-hit 2-0 shutout against the St. Louis Browns. It was a masterpiece that made up for Harder's 1-0 defeat by the Chicago White Sox a week before and it gave the Browns their sixth straight loss.

The Yankees helped Cleveland attain undisputed possession of second place by rallying for seven runs in the ninth to beat the Boston Red Sox, 8-5.

Phil Marchionni pitched a four-hit game to lead the Philadelphia Athletics to a 7-2 triumph over the Washington Senators. However, four-hit pitching was not good enough to let Edgna Smith and the Chicago White Sox win a victory over Detroit. The Tigers won 2-1 with all the scoring on home runs—one for Chicago by Don Kolloway and two for the Tigers by Rudy York and Bob Patrick.

Braves Spanked

Four-hit pitching was not good enough to win for the Boston Braves, either, against the New York Giants. One of the hits was a two-run homer by Rookie Wilford Marshall and the Giants won 3-1 on the eight-hit work of Cliff Mellon to move into second place.

The Phils, of all people, broke up a five-game winning streak for the Brooklyn Dodgers. Frank Hoerst held the Dodgers to five hits, while Danny Litwhiler made four, including a two-run homer, and Ben Warrenton singled with the bases loaded in an 11-hit attack that whipped Kirby Higbe, 4-2.

Cincinnati found two four-run rallies better than one five-run flurry by Pittsburgh and beat the Pirates, 9-5. Frank McCormick drove in five runs with a homer and a double.

The Chicago Cubs chased Howard Pollet with three runs on two hits, two walks and an error in the first inning and stopped the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-3, although outlived, six to five.

A bulldog that fits the neck of a standard size fruit jar has been invented to keep contents of a jar from drying out.

CINCINNATI, April 25.—The Cincinnati Reds opened a 17-game home stand today with Paul Derringer and Claude Passeau of the Chicago Cubs assuming the pitching duties.

At Pittsburgh yesterday the Reds won 9-5, evening the record for their first trip against the western club at three-three.

Manager Frankie Frisch used 20 Pirate players to thwart defeat, but his strategy proved unavailing against first baseman Frank McCormick's blasting bat.

Big Mac hit a home run in the fourth with two runners on base and in the sixth doubled to score two more runs. His sparked four-run Red Sox rallies in each of these frames.

Rookie Joe Abreau, with Milwaukee last year, counted the Redlegs' other tally by opening the seventh with a home run.

Abreau played second for Lonnie Frey who is recovering from spike injuries.

Rightfielder Ival Goodman got a walk, two doubles and two singles for a perfect day at bat and raised his average for the young season above .300 to top the National League.

Manager Frankie Frisch used 20 Pirate players to thwart defeat, but his strategy proved unavailing against first baseman Frank McCormick's blasting bat.

Big Mac hit a home run in the fourth with two runners on base and in the sixth doubled to score two more runs. His sparked four-run Red Sox rallies in each of these frames.

Rookie Joe Abreau, with Milwaukee last year, counted the Redlegs' other tally by opening the seventh with a home run.

Abreau played second for Lonnie Frey who is recovering from spike injuries.

Rightfielder Ival Goodman got a walk, two doubles and two singles for a perfect day at bat and raised his average for the young season above .300 to top the National League.

PHONE STOCK BLOCKS RALLY

Few Issues Check Up Gains
but Most Record Small Declines.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, April 23.—Persistent heaviness in American Telephone was an obstacle to recovery in the stock market today and leaders generally remained near yesterday's closings, some slightly ahead but with the majority almost decline.

The fact that prices on Thursday and Friday extended the progressive retreat to the lowest levels since the spring of 1933 seemed to apprise no broad buying interest. Today some departments of the list showed signs of stabilizing.

Telephone gave up a point or so, falling back to its lowest price since 1935. Western Union and American Telegraph bid, edged up a little. The conditioned prospects for a merger near

Other stocks showing moderate rallying power included Douglas Aircraft, Eastman Kodak, Good-year and Kennecott Steels, motors, and rails lacked support and heaviness marked Westinghouse, and Johns-Manville. Prices were mixed at the finish. Transactions were about 150,000 shares.

For the latest stage of the decline Wall Street saw as the most likely explanation a further run of liquidation of speculatively held shares in the belief that the new tax bill would involve such increases in corporation taxes as to endanger the current dividends now being paid by many important companies.

Washington

Attention here remained the few, but attention not only in connection with deliberations on the tax bill but also as a result of the Administration's work on putting the finishing touches on its anti-inflation program, to be disclosed early next week. Developments in the foreign situation had no particular bearing on domestic trends.

3 New England Papers Raise Subscription Rates

The Boston Evening Globe increased its price from two cents a copy to three cents, throughout New England, and set a price of five cents outside the New England states. The morning Globe now is selling for three cents.

Meanwhile, the Salem News and the Newburyport Daily News announced similar increases, from two cents to three cents per copy, to meet increased production costs.

Binocular Vision

One of my readers has been interested in the statement she saw in the newspapers that a prominent lecturer had been cured of anisokonia and wanted me to explain something of the nature of the disease and the way it is treated.

Anisokonia is a very rare and peculiar disease of the eyes in which the patient apparently loses his ability to maintain normal binocular vision.

It is probable that a baby looking at a certain object sees two objects and sees them upside down. Somehow or other in the course of the first six months of life we are able to train our eyes so that we reverse the image so that it is right side up. We fuse the two images so that we see only one and we also see perspective.

In other words, we see the object in spatial relation to depth. When these functions are disturbed they are often difficult, but sometimes easy to correct. For instance, the external muscles may become paralyzed which would throw the eyes off-balance and cause double vision. This can be corrected by glasses, but the trouble in anisokonia is that the individual sees two images of unequal size. For instance, looking at a chair, he not only sees two chairs, but one of them is larger than the other.

This obviously cannot be corrected with any simple form of glasses and oculists have been studying it for 15 or 20 years without making a great deal of progress until recently. The credit for the successful correction of anisokonia belongs to Dr. Adelbert Ames, Jr., at the Dartmouth Eye Institute in Hanover, New Hampshire.

The individual with anisokonia is subject to a large number of other troubles with his eyes. He is likely to be sensitive to light, to have ear and brain sickness, pain in his eyes, and naturally he has excessive nervousness and is either unable to read at all or unable to read over long periods.

A number of physicians have felt that a large part of this condition is due to neuroasthenia and can be corrected by psychology. They have not, however, had a great deal of success in treating cases in this way. It is unnecessary and it would be confusing to attempt to explain the methods which Dr. Ames and his associates and a few other clinics in the United States have used. Suffice it to say that he uses lenses of considerable complexity; some of them fit over other lenses and some of them are lenses which are known as double lenses—two lenses separated by an air space.

It is not to be expected that the details of these treatments will be understood by the average reader of this article. My only purpose in writing it is to tell those who have been afflicted for some time and who may have been discouraged that at the present time advances have been made in the diagnostic classification of the disease and that there is treatment.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge in Code Language by phone Tells Her Father To Have Hideaway Ready For Gangsters.

"MARGARET!" My father's voice over the telephone was incisive, sharpened I knew by anxiety. Where are you? When will you be back?

"I am at my destination," I told him, carefully weighing every word for fear of possible "listen-in." The discussion I was about to carry on with him was dynamite if Stephen Redfield and his associates could comprehend it. "But my cold is bothering me."

"I understand," he said promptly, for this was an old signal, meaning caution and camouflaged speech. "Don't use your voice any more than you have to."

"I shall be back probably in three hours," I said. "I found the article you wished, and another with it, and I am bringing them back with me. And—I hope you won't be angry with me. But one reason for my delay was that we passed a farm where there was an auction going on, and I just couldn't resist stopping."

Talks in Code.

"I found a most marvelous set of six needlepoint-covered chairs. They'll be just the thing for that apartment in old Chelsea and I couldn't resist taking them. They're a terribly light fit in the two cars. Oh, I didn't tell you yet there was a farm where there was an auction going on, and I just couldn't resist stopping."

"No, I don't mind in the least," he said. "I will see that the housekeeper in the apartment has everything ready for the reception of these chairs."

"Oh, thank you, Father!" I said.

by lenses which will render them able to have normal or nearly normal vision.

The fact that the lenses are a good deal of trouble and require considerable care and are quite expensive is of no consequence to the patient with anisokonia because the disability is such as practically to disable him from performing any of the functions of life.

gurgled. "That will be lovely! And the very best part of it is that nobody who matters knows I have the chairs. I mean, nobody who knows antiques, or who would bother me trying to buy them back again. I just happened in when people hadn't begun to come back from lunch, and so I sneaked them right out from under the noses of the other bargain hunters."

"Well, you certainly have had an exciting—and I hope profitable—afternoon," my father said with just the proper note of genial indulgence for a harum-scarum daughter in his voice. "Your errands are all finished now, I think you said?"

"Yes, and I'm starting back within fifteen minutes," I said. "But I won't be there until after dark. And do you know, I believe I've forgotten—oh, I remember now. That street the apartment is on is the one where I met you this morning, isn't it? I'll come there first."

"Yes, do that," he said. "And be careful coming back. Is there anything more that you wish to tell me?"

"No," I gurgled, "except that you are the dearest father in the world not to be angry at me. And I'm so thrilled that nobody knows about my six chairs; nobody, and I got them all, not one missing."

"That is splendid!" he said heartily. "I shall be all ready for you—and the chairs—when you get here. Goodbye, my darling. Again, be careful! I'm saying it twice."

"I will," I promised. "Goodbye." I put back the receiver with a heady little thrill of triumph. That last sentence of my father's, "I'm saying it twice," had meant that he comprehended the meaning of my rambling and would have all preparations made to receive at the Village hideaway my "six needlepoint-covered chairs."

Something beyond my usual sense of precaution had prompted my elaborate camouflage, with its reference to the apartment in "old Chelsea." I had sometimes had a feeling there was a dangerous "listen-in" to our conversations at the Lansfield.

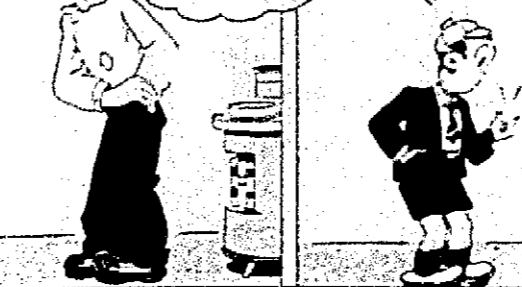

But even as I permitted myself a bit of gloating over the fact that the six gangsters and their car would vanish into the Connecticut mountain air, as far as any report to their superiors was concerned, a knock sounded on the door and the voice of Gus came huskily to my ears: "Miss Graham. The captain he wants to speak to you quick."
